Synod Report

On Saturday 16th and Sunday the 17th of October Julia and I attended the final session of the 44th Triennial Synod at St Peter's College. Synod was ably led by Archbishop Geoff, who gave an inspiring Sermon, and was smoothly run and organised by Diocese & Synod Secretary Joe Thorp and his team.

When I volunteered to be the All Souls' Synodsperson, one of the congregation reminded me of Otto von Bismarck's apocryphal quip: "Those who like Politics or Sausages should never watch them being made".

I took this - correctly as it turned out - to temper my enthusiasm about the run-through of the dull minutiae of reports, quibbles over phrasing and amendments etc., and, yes, that is a "thing" at Synod. However, Synod is also the very real and meaningful manifestation that Anglicans do get a say in how their Diocese is run - where the money goes, what our focus should be - and it is a forum to air concerns or grievances.

More importantly, Synod gives you a chance to meet other Anglicans, hear what they are doing, and where your money is being deployed. Julia and I heard presentations from, amongst others, The Rev'd Dr Joan Riley on the "Anglican Church Family Domestic Violence Research Project", The Rev'd Canon Jenny Wilson on the Climate Change focussed "Anglican Creation Care Network" and The Rev'd Ben Bleby on Saints' now 50 strong (and co-curricular) "Youth@Saints".

Informally, Synod allows you to meet people like the Rev'ds Paula Bullock and Prue O'Donovan, both Chaplains at Anglicare providing meaningful and immediate help to the less fortunate via "The Quickest Warmth Project". Above all, I came away encouraged. We are part of a wider network with a vibrant future, our role in that future is in our, the broader All Souls' Parish's, hands.
