A new OAM among us

Lorraine Irving Gormly

AFTER a 10-year professional ballet career, Lorraine Irving Gormly can't pinpoint the highlight.

"Simply dancing was my favourite experience," Ms Irving Gormly said.

Now living in Adelaide's northern suburbs, she has been awarded an OAM for her service to ballet.

Ms Irving Gormly started her dance career in Toowoomba, in southern Queensland, at age six with her next door neighbour.

She later danced in Darwin, before moving to Adelaide, dancing Odette in Swan Lake before the exciting chance to join the Australian Ballet in Melbourne. A tragic accident, though, cut her career short.

But the accident did not keep Ms Irving Gormly away from ballet, and she has gone on to be a volunteer stage director for the SA Children's Ballet Company, and the president of the Friends of the Australian Ballet South Australia.
